Trust Your Mother.

Trust your mother, little one;
In life's morning, just begun,
You will find some grief, some fears,
Which, perhaps, may cause you tears;
But a mother's kiss can heal
Many griefs that children feel;
Trust your mother—seek to prove
Grateful for her thoughtful love.

Trust your mother, noble youth;
Turn not from the paths of truth,
In temptation's evil hour
Seek her, ere it gains new power.
She will never guide you wrong;
Faith in her will make you strong.
Trust your mother—aim to prove
Worthy of her fondest love.

Trust your mother, maiden fair;
Love will guide your steps with care,
Let no cloud e'er come between—
Let no shadow e'er be seen,
Hiding from your mother's heart,
What may prove a poisoned dart;
Trust your mother—seek to prove
Worthy of her faithful love.

Trust your mother to the end,
She will prove your constant friend;
If 'tis gladness wings the hour,
Share with her the joyful shower—
Or if sorrow should oppress,
She will smile and she will bless;
O, be trustful, loving, true,
That she may confide in you.

Truth, Stranger than Fiction.

There are those who will disbelieve the story below, says the Butte County Press, but it is true in every particular. We knew Nixon Curry, and a more brave, honorable and candid man, prior to the affair with the Strongs, never breathed. The writer has omitted to mention two facts—first, that Curry was under the influence of drink when he revealed the strange history of his early life, although he was a very temperate man. The second omission is, that Mose Howard, spoken of, was the betrothed of Curry's supremely beautiful daughter Mary.

THE OUTLAW.

In the year 18—there lived in Indell county, North Carolina, a Presbyterian minister by the name of Curry. He was a man in comfortable circumstances, of most excellent reputation, with a large family of sons and daughters. Among these was a boy by the name of Nixon, noted for his sprightliness, his activity and courage.

Many are the incidents recorded of his early days, wherein he displayed his bravery, and won the respect and admiration of his schoolmates. He seemed impulsive, generous, and the possessor of many noble qualities.

From childhood Nixon Curry was in love. His fair one was a girl somewhat younger than himself, attending the same school with him. She returned his affection, and so ardently were they attached to one another, that, what is most rare in childhood, no rival was ever suffered to come between them.

Thus they grew up in a delicious dream of the future, and as their years increased, so, apparently, did their passion for each other. This was so evident at fifteen that their parents positively forbade all interviews between them. Her parents were the very F. F.'s of North Carolina, and they had and could easily secure more brilliant prospects for her.

The natural consequences followed. The lovers met by stealth and renewed their pledges to each other. Lucy promised that whatever should occur she would never wed any one else, and Nixon vowed to stand by her so long as a breath of life remained in his body.

At length, at the age of eighteen, when Lucy's relatives were doing their utmost to force her into the arms of another, she fled with her true and devoted lover. They were immediately pursued and overtaken, when the enraged Nixon Curry, brought to bay, turned and shot his rival and one of the others, and renewed his flight.

The pursuit was hot, but he succeeded in eluding them, and took refuge among the Alleghany Mountains, near the sources of the Catawba.

Here really begins the extraordinary career of Nixon Curry. Under the plea of necessity, he took up the profession of robber, and speedily rendered his name famous by the number and character of his exploits. Without attempting to give any of the minor incidents, it should be stated that the young robber never took a life for the sake of plunder, although he did it again and again to avoid arrest.

The Governor of North Carolina offered five thousand dollars for his apprehension, and many parties, tempted by the offer, engaged in the pursuit. They frequently gained sight of the notorious bandit; more than once the crack of his death-dealing rifle was heard from some adjoining rock; but never were they able to discover his retreat or bring him to bay.

Suddenly all rumors of his daring conduct ceased, and although the search was continued, he was seen no more in North Carolina. It was judged that his quarters were becoming too hot for safety, and he had, therefore, prudently removed them while the opportunity remained to him.

* * * * *

During the first settlement of the fertile delta bordering on the St. Francis, now in the State of Arkansas, an emigrant made his appearance, calling himself John Hill. He rapidly became the most popular man in the settlement. Although of moderate means, he was sober, industrious, generous, and of extended hospitality, and such continued to be his character in the country which he had adopted for a period extending over a dozen years. During all this time not a quarrelsome word occurred between him and any of his neighbors; and yet all knew that it was from no lack of courage on the part of Hill, for of all the hunters that ever pierced the jungles of cane in the "Great Swamp," or descended by torchlight into the bowels of the Ozark Mountains, he had the reputation of being the most fearless. He was overwhelmingly elected again and again to the Territorial Legislature, and distinguished himself by his powerful and impassioned eloquence, and speedily became a leader in the ranks of his own party. He was a member of the Convention which formed the State Constitution, and was re-elected the ensuing year to represent his county in the Senate of Arkansas.

And now began his second series of misfortunes. Hill's most intimate neighbors were the Strongs, four brothers of considerable wealth, a great deal of ambition, and, in the phrase of the country, "famous fighters." A close and cordial intimacy grew up between them and Hill, and the latter, most unfortunately, and unguardedly, made George, the elder, a confidant to his previous history. It so happened that George had a most ambitious desire for political distinction, and made a request of Hill that he should resign his seat in the Senate in his favor. Hill refused, and the brothers conspired for revenge.

Sending to North Carolina, they procured a copy of the reward offered for Nixon Curry, the notorious robber. The four, powerful and determined as they were, dared not attempt his capture alone, but secured the assistance of a dozen men, and made the attempt to capture Hill in his own house. The latter never forgot his daily peril. He always carried an enormous double-barreled shotgun, two long rifle pistols, and a formidable knife. Arkansas has never been noted as a peacefully inclined State, and in those days its population numbered a greater per cent. of desperadoes and lawless men than it does at the present.

The attack of the Strongs proved a dreadful one for themselves. Two of the brothers were shot dead, while six of the others were bodly wounded, several of them mortally, when the rest of them were glad to withdraw for the time. This affair caused the most unbounded excitement throughout Arkansas. The thought that the chivalrous and highly popular John Hill could be identical with the notorious robber, Nixon Curry, was staggering to hundreds. Many for a time refused to believe it.

Perhaps the state of public feeling can best be shown by the two following extracts taken from the Little Rock Gazette. They first appeared when Hill became so popular during the days of the Convention:

"Among the truest friends of the people of all in the present Convention, may be named John Hill, of St. Francis. His energy, eloquence and courage fully entitle him to the proud place he holds, and, as we trust, will long retain—that of the leader of the Arkansas Democracy."

The second extract is taken from the same paper, for May, 1840:

"BLOODY AFFRAY.—A desperate rencontre occurred last week in St. Francis. Two distinguished citizens were killed, and three others dangerously wounded. The difficulty resulted from an attempt to arrest John Hill, a member of the last Legislature, and formerly of the State Convention, who, as it is alleged, is the notorious robber, Nixon Curry, who committed such atrocities fifteen years ago in the mountains of North Carolina."

A requisition was sent by the Governor of North Carolina demanding the surrender of Nixon Curry. The Governor of Arkansas published an additional reward for the arrest of John Hill; and thus between the two it seemed as if it was about up with the victim.

Hill packed up hastily and set out with his wife and children for Upper Arkansas, where he knew of the existence of a band of desperadoes that he had reason to believe would protect him. He was pursued by over one hundred of the citizens, many of them unarmed, and attending only for the purpose of witnessing the sport and securing a part of the munificent reward that was offered for the man's apprehension. Hill was overtaken at Conway Court House by these men, and halting his wagon, and admonishing his wife and children to keep their places, he marched boldly forth with his death-dealing gun to meet them.

The gallantry of the action, and Hill's incredible bravery, operated in his favor. Many were unwilling to hurt so intrepid a character, others were afraid, a panic was created, and Hill pursued his way unmolested.

Subsequent attempts were made to arrest him, but all resulted tragically or ludicrously to those attempting it. It was known that Hill could never be taken alive, and many began to believe that he could not when dead also.

The constant pursuit and hunting of him changed his nature. He became morose and sour, and unable to follow any regular business, he resorted to the gambling table for the support of his family. He became a drinker, too, and was speedily transformed into a most bitter and quarrelsome opponent.

If Hill had been famous among the mountains of North Carolina, he now became doubly so. Excepting, perhaps, that prince of duelists, James Bowie, there never was a man who inspired more terror. Men who had acquired a wide reputation for their deeds of daring, turned pale when they encountered John Hill. Bullies who sought quarrels on the slightest pretext, accepted all manner of insults from him without a word of remonstrance.

One day in September, 1845, while he was seated at the breakfast table, Hill burst into tears.

"What is the matter, dear?" inquired his wife.

"I have had a dreadful dream; it is a warning. I know that I shall die before sunset. Together we have encountered perils and hardships; you abandoned wealth and position for my sake, and you have never spoken an unkind word to me. We have loved from childhood, and that love has never known abatement. It is this that troubles me—not regard for self. It is indellibly impressed upon my mind that I shall die a horrible death before sundown, and the thought that it will distress you, also distresses me."

These were the exact words of Hill, as testified by his wife and children. His wife told him—

"Then, my dear husband, do not go to court to-day!"

(The Circuit Court of Pope county, in which Hill resided, it should be remarked, was then in session.)

"Yes, my wife, I must go," he replied. "When a man's time has come he should not seek to avoid death, but meet it bravely." Then turning to his son, William, a bright boy of thirteen, he told him to go and get the Bible, and upon it he made him swear to kill the man who should kill his father.

"Here comes Moses Howard, father, he will protect you," remarked Mary, the eldest daughter, as she descried the young man approaching.

The youth, who was a fine, powerful looking man, chatted a few minutes with the family, and then went out in company with Hill, who shaved and dressed himself with particular neatness, and embraced his wife with the warmest affection, and with tears in his eyes, before leaving.

As soon as the two reached town, Hill began drinking deeply, and showed a more quarrelsome disposition than ever. He insulted everybody that crossed his path, and all the entreaties of the young man failed to pacify him. Finally he declared that he would clear the Court House, and dashed into the Court-room with fury depicted in his countenance. Judge, lawyers, jury, spectators, all made a rush for the door. One man who lagged behind was seized by Hill and beaten unmercifully.

Young Howard caught hold of the infuriated man and attempted to restrain him, when, glaring like a tiger, he turned upon the youth and struck him to the floor. Before he could rise Hill sprang upon him and commenced pounding him.

"For God's sake, stop, Hill! Don't you know me, your friend—Howard?"

Hill seemed to grow more furious each moment, and finally clutched a pistol, determined to take his friend's life. Howard, seeing the crisis had come, seized the Bowie knife that protruded from his vest and buried it in his bosom.

"The dream is fulfilled!" exclaimed Hill, with a smile of singular sweetness that lingered on his naturally handsome face after he was a corpse. He then died without a groan.

Howard looked down into his face, as if unable to realize what he had done. Then he burst into tears, exclaiming:

"God knows I would not have done it if I could have helped it, but it was either your life or mine!"

He turned away with a gloomy air, and upon the instant disappeared. He was never seen in Arkansas again, but several years after a trader brought the news that he was living at San Antonio, Texas.

Were we writing fiction, we should here lay aside the pen; but as we are giving facts simply, which can be substantiated, duty compels us to add another incident before this tragical tale is ended.

It will be remembered that Hill enjoined upon his son to avenge his death. Faithfully did his son obey the command. When he had reached his nineteenth year he left for Texas. He was gone several months. When he returned, he said to his mother:

"It is done, mother! Poor Howard! I pitied him, but I had to do it!"

BLACK SHEEP.—All trades have terms designating those among them who have sold out their own and their fellow workmen's interest during their difficulties; thus, for instance, the typo cries "rat," the molder "scab," and the peddler "black sheep," etc. Every trade and calling is cursed with this class of men, than whom there crawls no meaner worm on the face of the earth. For a few paltry dollars, or a superintendent's smile, the cringing, sneaking hound betrays his manhood, defeats the efforts of his fellows, who are alike striving for his as well as their own interest. If there is a despicable creature on earth, it is the traitor. All men despise him, and woman spurns him. Children soon learn to point the finger of contempt at him as he crawls through society, a thing of loathing and disgust. There is a vast difference between the man who yields to superior endurance, and is compelled to accept terms, unable longer to contend against his opponent, and the man who "sells out." The former yields to the call of humanity. His starving, helpless little ones, a sick and emaciated wife, needing the comforts of life, call upon his finer nature, and he yields, under protest, accepting the hard terms of his employer in preference to inflicting punishment upon his helpless family. The sacrifice this man makes is God-like. He assumes the distress of his family. He keeps the burning sense of shame hid beneath his smiling face; but the traitor seeks to sell his manhood for a dish of porridge. He has no honor, and oftimes when offered as much as the struggling workman to stand firm as he receives from his employer to yield, he throws the smile of the employer in the scale, and accepts the price of dishonor. He receives his reward in the contempt with which his very purchasers treat him. We most earnestly wish the day may soon come when employers and workmen will be enabled to avoid such destructive contests as tend to develop the worst and meanest species of our race.—[Welcome Workman.

BULWER eloquently says: "I cannot believe that earth is man's abiding place. It cannot be that our life, cast up by the ocean of eternity, is to float a moment upon its wave and sink into nothingness, else why is it that the glorious aspiration, which like angels from the temple of our heart, are forever wandering about unsatisfied?"

MODEST friendship, like the moon, shows herself not in sunshine, but in the hour of darkness. When shades of adversity thicken around, she meekly and ostentatiously steps forth from her retirement, and sheds her welcome and soothing light upon the heart of woe.

THE good man looks with forbearance, the bad man with severity, on the faults of others. The virtue of others always excites envy in the heart of the vicious man; and the respect which he sees paid to virtue, is a thorn which rankles in his breast.

YOUNG LADIES do not know what a beautifier industry is; how their plumage, like that on the dove's neck, plays and glances only when they move; how much men are like beasts of prey, which will touch only what has motion.

YOU may depend upon it, there is a good deal of domestic happiness in a well-dressed mutton chop or a tidy beefsteak. The woman who can cook, contributes more to the happiness of society than twenty who cannot cook.

OF all earthly music, that which reaches farthest into heaven is the beating of a loving heart.

The following are the officers for the ensuing year : C. S. Haswell, M. W. G. M.; S. W. Brockway, D. G. M.; J. B. Harmon, G. W.; T. Rodgers Johnson, G. S.; H. B. Brooks, G. T ; A. J. Gunnison, Grand Representative. Trustees—A. A. Sargent, Louis Sober and H. C. Squire.

Hon. James A. Johnson.—The nominating committee of the Third Congressional District, could not have better suited the wishes of the constituents of James A. Johnson, than they did by their action in giving that gentleman the nomination for re-election to Congress. There were other worthy aspirants for the same position, who, if chosen by the Committee, would doubtless have commanded the respect and support of the party, but not one of them could have reasonably expected a more unanimous and enthusiastic endorsement by the people than that which will be accorded to Mr. Johnson, who has been weighed in the balance and found equal to the task in every emergency. His re-election, by an increased majority, is one of the certain events of the good time coming.

Calling Them Out.—The following resolution, passed by the Democratic State Convention, is serving a good purpose in calling out the sentiments of the Radical press in regard to the matter at issue :

Resolved, That it is not only the patriotic duty but the deliberate purpose of the Democratic party, never to submit to be governed by negroes, nor by those claiming to be elected by negro suffrage ; and we do earnestly recommend the adoption of this resolution by the National Democratic Convention when it shall assemble in July.

The Sacramento Union sets up a howl, and small fry of the same stripe join in the chorus. That's right, gentlemen ; show your hands. The people will remember who are the advocates of negro suffrage, and will prepare to give Mongrelism a merited rebuke next November.

What it Costs.—The military organization down South, numbering eighteen thousand men, is a bill of expense on the Government of more than one hundred and seventy-five millions of dollars. The Bureau costs a like sum, and the nigger conventions will swell the amount to about three hundred and fifty millions of dollars yearly, and this, says the Day Book, is what the North has to pay for all this wretched compound of tomfoolery and despotism, carried on for the purpose of elevating the negro and degrading the white man. Will the toiling, sweating and starving white masses continue to furnish means to perpetuate such infamous Radical despotism ?

Dodge-ing the Question.—Hon. W. E. Dodge recently made a little speech for the purpose of vindicating General Grant from the charge of intemperance, in which he stated that he had just been in Washington, and had had a long interview with General Grant, and, continued he, "I left him with the conviction that neither we nor the friends of temperance have any cause for anxiety in this respect." The matter at issue was no doubt set at rest in the mind of the speaker by this "interview ;" but such evidence will hardly satisfy the inquiring minds of the friends of temperance. The veriest debauche in the land would not be likely to convict himself of drunkenness on his own testimony.

Infamous !—By reference to the latest telegraphic dispatches in another column, it will be seen that well-founded reasons exist for the belief that several Senators have been poisoned in order to influence the final verdict of the jury in the impeachment case. The perpetrators of such diabolical deeds of infamy who would bring disgrace on the nation by an outrage of that character, deserve the scorn and condemnation of the civilized world. Wilkes Booth was an angel compared to the authors of this dastardly crime at the Capitol of the nation.

Sufferings of the People.

The reckless and destructive policy of the Radical party is beginning to exhibit its legitimate fruits so plain that honest people can no longer be deceived by their vile pretentions. The suffering and distress which has followed in the wake of unprincipled legislation and despotic sway are beginning to be felt. While the country should be teeming with an abundance of the necessaries of life, and the sons of toil furnished with the rewards of industry, the voice of woe is heard in the land. While shoddites, bondholders, contractors and hordes of officials are reveling in ill-gotten treasure, the cry of hunger is heard from thousands who have been duped and victimized by fraud—worse than robbery. On this subject, the New York Times, of late date, makes the following remarks :

Every day reveals more clearly the extraordinary amount of want and suffering that exists among the poor of this city at the present time. Wherever a place is opened to furnish relief to the destitute, it is instantly filled with gaunt and hungry wretches, eager for the bowl of soup and crust of bread which come from the hand of charity. The statistics of the regular institutions of charity show an amount of distress unparalleled since the hard times of 1855. The soup-houses of Boston are also kept very active.

It seems hard that such a state of affairs should exist. The idea is revolting to contemplate that while nothing but a "bowl of soup and a crust of bread" are between thousands of New York and Boston paupers and starvation, the leaders of the party in power are heaping the burden of taxation on the laboring white men of the land in order that able-bodied, healthy negroes of the South, who are too lazy to work, may be sustained. The insatiate thirst for revenge, and the criminal prejudice which would prompt a political party to ignore all sentiments of magnanimity and justice, are but the attributes which form the character of demons. What can be said of white men who, fired with insane hatred of their own race, seek to fatten the negro on the life-blood of the nation, while hundreds and thousands of poor white men are begging their daily bread?

But the people are getting tired of this policy ; they are awakening to their own interests, and have determined to no longer submit to such atrocities as have been forced upon them. The burdens of taxation must be equalized, Freedmen's Bureaus disorganized, and the useless armies of the South disbanded. Every well-wisher of his country should stamp his seal of condemnation on the Radical party, and add his strength to one mighty effort to hurl these unworthy servants from place and from power. This is a white man's Government, and white men, above all others, have a right to the benfits to be derived from it.

If the patriot desires to hear no more the voice of disunion in the land, if the causes of strife, suffering and sectional hatred have become intolerable, and the blessings of union, peace and harmony are worthy of our earnest consideration, then, with singleness of purpose and unity of action, every lover of his country should prepare himself for the coming contest, and cease not his efforts until the rights of every section are duly respected, and the inestimable prize of union and harmony is once more regained.

The Peanut.—The adaptability of the soil and climate of California for the growth of peanuts, has attracted the attention of many farmers and horticulturists, who have been very successful in their experiments in the cultivation of the plant, or vine, and now that new uses of the product are becoming known which will cause an increased demand in the market, doubtless a more general attention will be paid to its cultivation. A correspondent of the Country Gentleman, who is engaged in their cultivation, in one of the Atlantic States, in speaking of the economical uses of the peanut, says :

It will yield an abundant quantity of oil, excellent, limpid, clear and inodorous—in quality equal to the best French olive oil, and not liable to become rancid. It is much used for making a dry and inodorous soap ; and a large soap manufacturing company in Bordeaux, France, is now engaged in cultivating peanuts on an extensive tract of sandy land in the Landes, for the purposes of supplying themselves with the oil. The nuts yield from one and a half to two gallons of oil to the bushel ; and the oil-cake is found to be good food for cattle, or manure for the land. Certainly if the cultivation of castor beans is profitable, simply for the oil they yield, the cultivation of peanuts must be still more so, considering the greater variety of their uses. Besides being eaten as nuts, they are ground and mixed with flour or meal, so as to make excellent bread and cake ; they are also mixed with cocoa to make an improved chocolate. An emulsion of a peculiar aroma can be made of them ; also a very palatable, refreshing liquor.

Reno.—The new town, called Reno, on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, seems to be the center of attraction at this time. An auction sale of town lots was to have taken place there on last Saturday. No doubt fabulous prices were paid for corner lots, where a few weeks ago the location was recognized only as a wilderness. It is predicted that Reno will soon become a flourishing town, commanding the trade of large tracts of agricultural lands, including Sierra, Long, Truckee, Honey Lake and Winnemucca vallies.

Hark from the Tombs ! —The Sacramento Record complains bitterly because the Day Book administers a stinging rebuke to dishonest Radicals, and, to retaliate, it classes the Day Book with the "Kuklux of the Democratic press." But the most astonishing thing the Record attempts in this connection is a vindication of the character of Butler and Stevens. An immense undertaking, with no very flattering prospects of success.

The Election To-day.

The qualified electors of Yolo county will determine to-day the question of the proposed donation of $100,000, in county bonds, to the California Pacific Railroad. By this time, no doubt, every voter has thoroughly investigated the subject, and is prepared to exercise his privilege in recording a vote in accordance with his own views. This is as it should be, for notwithstanding the measure has awakened an unusual interest among both friends and opponents, the ballot must be the final arbiter, and all should be willing to acquiesce in a decision rendered by a fair vote.

We still entertain the opinion that the best interests of the county demand that some rapid and convenient mode of travel and transportation should be adopted, in order that the vast resourses of rich agricultural lands, which are now covered with bountiful crops, may be opened to the public, and that the farmer may find a more ready market for the products of the soil. We believe that the bill authorizing this election, and which was introduced by Representative Kelley—who has proven himself a careful guardian of the interests of his constituents—is so thoroughly arranged that it can be construed in no manner calculated to abuse the confidence of the honest tax-payer. The road, according to the express terms of one of the contracting parties, (the Company) must be complete and in good running order before one cent of the proposed bonds may be legally demanded from the county. This, as well as other conditions of the contract, drawn up with a special view of preventing the possibility of imposition, has become an absolute legislative enactment, and cannot be violated to the detriment of the county or any resident tax-payer who feels an interest for or against the proposition. We feel confident that the result of the election will be favorable to the proposition, and that in less than eighteen months from date, the railroad, extending its lines and branches over the county, will infuse new life and energy in the industrial pursuits of the people, and add wealth and prosperity to the already rich but undeveloped resources of the county.

The Sunday Law—An Important Decision by Judge Provines.—The case in which Charles Fritsch is defendant, says the Alta, involving the validity of the Sunday Law, which has been hanging fire so long in the Police Court, was called again yesterday The defence had demurred to the complaint in the case, on the ground that the law was in terms too indefinite, merely forbidding theatrical exhibitions being given "on the Sabbath day" in its text, though in its caption it refers to "the First Day of the week, commonly called Sunday." It was claimed by the defence that the caption was no part of the law, and that the term "the Sabbath" might refer to any day in the week, as it is a well-known fact that every day in the week is kept by some one of the different nations and professions of different faiths in the world, and that if "the Christian Sabbath," or Sunday, was meant, it should be so expressly stated in the body of the law that no mistake could occur. This principal point, made by the defence, is overruled by Judge Provines in a lengthy, written opinion, which fully sustains the law. This decision greatly disappoints the Germans, who had considered it almost certain that the law would not be sustained. As the defence propose to carry the case to the Supreme Court, a further extension of a week was given to allow the counsel time to make up an agreed statement of facts and legal points on which to appeal it.

New Machine for Gold Washing.—A Washington correspondent, writing to a friend in Stockton, states that he has become interested in a newly invented machine which, on the rivers of California that, have golden sands, will make anybody's fortune in less than no time. He claims that it will take up and wash dirt or gravel from the bottom of a stream at the rate of from ten to twelve cubic yards per minute. The following is the writer's sketch of the working capacity of the machine :

Now as there are twenty-seven cubic feet in a cubic yard, and six pans in each cubic foot, there would be one hundred and sixty-two pans in one cubic yard of dirt. Now, multiply that by ten (as the machine will throw ten cubic yards per minute), and we have one thousand six hundred and twenty pans per minute, which at one cent per pan —not very rich diggings—gives us $16 20 per minute. Do you think that will pay? We think it will, and are getting ready to try it. I have no doubt this sounds fishy to you, and it always will, until you can see it operate ; for you or any one else can never realize what it will do until you see it. Such has been my experience with every person whom I have taken to see a small working model. We are now building a full-sized machine, and expect to have it ready to operate within two months of the present date. We have already been offered and have refused $15,000 for the right for the State of California.

Steam Plow.—The following description of a new "agricultural locomotive" invented by Locher, of Oroville, is given by the Butte Record :

The locomotive has six wheels, all of which are drivers, and all geared to the engine, by means of equalizing gears, so that in turning a curve the inside driving wheels will travel considerably slower than the outside ones, and the front wheels faster than the hind ones. The wagon is so arranged as to pass over uneven ground without getting out of gear. It is a perfect steam wagon, with six smooth drivers, and will ascend a grade of one in three. The spading apparatus is attached to the rear part of the machine, and consists of a transverse shaft with thirty-six spades attached, in the form of a screw, so that only two will enter the soil at the same time ; the spaders strike the ground like a pick, cut it like a spade, and turn it over like a plow. The field has the appearance of being cross-plowed. The machine is driven by a double engine, and will plow twelve feet in width and twelve inches deep. It requires the attention of but two men, an engineer and a pilot, and will plow forty to fifty acres per day, at a cost of less than fifty cents per acre, doing better work than the gang plow.

Latest Eastern News.—From the Sacramento Reporter, of Thursday last, we take the following :

Chicago, May 13.—Specials from Washington say that every form of pressure is being brought to bear upon doubtful Senators. Mr. Henderson has received a number of telegrams from Missouri asking him to resign. The entire Missouri delegation is endeavoring to influence him.

The Iowa delegates held a meeting and resolved not to recognize Mr. Grimes as a member of the Republican party.

Mr. Forney having resigned as Secretary of the Senate, will open his batteries on Senators Fessenden, Grimes, Henderson and Trumbull, denouncing them as recreant to the party.

Telegrams have been sent out to get up popular demonstrations, especially in New England.

The doubtful Senators are now composed of the following : Anthony, Fowler, Frelinghuysen, Ross, Sprague, Van Winkle and Willey.

It is believed that Anthony, Frelinghuysen and Sprague are certain to vote for conviction, so the President must have both of the West Virginia Senators and Fowler to insure an acquittal. These three, to say the least, are doubtful.

New York, May 13.—The Tribune of this morning says : Confidential dispatches, received late last night by the editors of the Tribune, leave doubts if the Senate will convict on Saturday. A leading friend of Mr. Johnson considers conviction doubtful, and regards the chances about even. A sagacious Republican has said that Senator Anthony is safe, and Senator Willey is sure for two articles, and Van Winkle on the eleventh.

New York, May 13.—Henry Bergh, President of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, lectured before that Society last night in favor of horse-flesh for food. The Society rejected a resolution recommending horse-flesh for that purpose, by nearly a unanimous vote.

Later.—Chicago May 14th.—Mr. Henderson will vote for the eleventh article. Mr. Trumbull has not committed himself against this article. Mr. Fowler has deserted the Republican party entirely.

The illness of three Senators—Howard, Conkling and Grimes—causes considerable excitement. The first symptoms of all are of the same character. The seat of attack being in the bowels. In the case of Messrs. Howard and Conkling, this feature is very severe ; with Mr. Grimes less marked, but accompanied by paralytic symptoms. He became much better after removal to his rooms, and complains only of slight numbness in the right arm and leg. His physicians hope he will be out in a few days.

Mr. Howard is also better, though still very sick. Mr. Conkling is so ill that his friends are not allowed to see him. There were some grounds, last week, for apprehending such troubles. Senators were cautioned to exercise great care in drinking from the pitchers at the Capitol.

The Republicans freely declare that unless conviction is certain, the vote on the impeachment of Johnson will be postponed until after the Chicago Convention.

The State Prison.—This institution which has heretofore been a burden on the taxpayer will probably pay its own way hereafter. In this connection, the Times says : "It seems that the State Prison is at last in a fair way to become self supporting. The Directors have succeeded in raising the contract price of labor from thirty cents to fifty cents per day, which, with the number of men at present employed by contractors, will make a gain of nearly $25,000 per year. The contract system is to be abandoned in the brick yard, and the work carried on for the benefit of the State, by which means it is hoped to make an additional gain that, together with the gain on the contract labor, will nearly bring the receipts up to the expenditures. The new Directors have so far done well ; and, if they shall succeed in making San Quentin pay its expenses, they will deserve the thanks, not only of every taxpayer, but of every friend of prison reform ; for financial reform will help to bring about others."

Arrived.—Ex-United States Senator, W. M. Gwin, arrived in San Francisco on Tuesday last.

TOWN AND COUNTY MATTERS.

ANTI-RAILROAD MEETING AT KNIGHT'S LANDING.—A correspondent at Knight's Landing sends us the following humorous account of an anti-railroad meeting recently held in that place: “On Wednesday last, our town was visited by a gentleman who announced that he would address the citizens of the town, on that evening, in opposition to the railroad donation, when a bomb was to 'bust' that would explode, effectually, the advocates of that measure. Accordingly, everybody was on the qui vive, and expectation ran high in anticipation of the 'feast of reason and flow of soul' to be displayed on the occasion. Accordingly, at 9 P. M., an impromptu stand, consisting of a dry goods box, was arranged, and he mounted the rostrum, which being of rather small dimensions, the speaker, getting enthusiastic on the subject in a flight of eloquence, made an unfortunate step beyond the limits of the stand, and ingloriously fell head first into the street, when, alas! as if by preconcerted malignity, the demon of Confucius was let loose, fire-crackers exploded, tin pans roared, boys hallooed—yells, screams, and all unearthly sounds combined to make a bedlam indescribable. From amidst the blaze of fire-crackers, the speaker might be seen gathering himself up as out of a blazing furnace, when he manfully returned to the charge, disdaining to be driven from his purpose by such futile means. But, alas, for frail humanity! What fire-crackers and tin pans failed to accomplish, Woodland lager, “with a stick in it,” succeeded in accomplishing. The speaker's mind became confused, the ideas of a prolific mind confounded—railroad and Chinaman, nigger and Indian, eloquence and profanity, combined in one indescribable mass of confusion, and the roar of discordant sounds, rendered the scene one that beggars description, and of which my pen can give but a very faint description. The gentleman is enthusiastic on his subject. No amount of discouragement dampens his ardor; he believes he has a mission to fulfill, and that mission is to protect the interests of the people of Yolo; and however much I may disagree with his conclusions, I certainly admire his pluck. On this occasion, however, he reminded me of the Irishman who had been feasted and petted on election day, and so effectually was he filled with the ardent, that, overcome by patriotism and excessive friendship, he fell asleep. Upon waking on the following morning in a street corner, dry and alone, he exclaimed: 'Where—oh! where are all my friends?'”

CHECK-MATED BY A WOMAN.—A farmer, living a few miles from town, recently had occasion to visit San Francisco. On his departure, he left his ranch in charge of his wife who generally looks after the interest of her husband during his absence. Shortly after being left alone, she learned that some parties were making preparations to “jump” an adjoining quarter section of land claimed by her husband, but which had not been improved as the law directs pre-emptors to do in order to hold their estate. The energetic woman arose early in the morning, hauled lumber the distance of one mile, built a house on the disputed territory, moved her furniture into the new house and took up her abode in it (all in one day), and held the claim in triumph until the return of her unsuspecting partner, who was, no doubt, agreeably impressed with the pluck and energy of his faithful spouse.

INSTALLATION.—On Tuesday evening, at a regular meeting of Woodland Lodge, No. 237, I.O.G.T., the following newly elected officers were duly installed for the ensuing term: C. C. Scott, W.C.T.; Maggie Pennington, W.R. H.S.; Melinda Prior, W.L.H.S.; Jennie Pennington, W.V.T.; R. P. Davidson, W.S.; A. M. Giddings, W.A.S.; C. F. Briggs, W.T.; C. S. Jackson, W.F.S.; H. C. Grover, W.M.; Mary E. Grover, W.D.M.; Lizzie Frost, W.I.G.; John Holmes, W.O.G.; L. M. Giddings, W.C. The Lodge is in a prosperous condition, the whole number of members being one hundred and twenty-five.

QUICK TIME.—Since Cutler & Bro.'s new line of stages were placed on the route between Woodland and Suisun, connecting with boats at the latter place for San Francisco, passengers have been enabled to make quick time to and from the Bay, and have experienced a much less degree of inconvenience and annoyance heretofore so much complained of. The line is now thoroughly established, and will make regular trips three times a week, leaving Woodland every Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings. The enterprise is one that promises to be successful.

PICNIC AT COTTONWOOD.—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to the whole force of the DEMOCRAT office to attend a May party and picnic at Cottonwood, on Friday, the 22nd instant. This picnic, we learn, is being arranged for the recreation and amusement of the pupils belonging to the interesting school of that locality. Some literary exercises of merit may be expected on the occasion, to be participated in by the school, and, we doubt not, all who visit the grounds will enjoy a rich treat.

CAN AFFORD IT.—During an excited debate on the Railroad question, at Knight's Landing, the other evening, an opponent of the proposed donation, who was probably not a resident of the county, unwittingly remarked in the presence of bystanders that the Navigation Company could afford to spend $25,000 to carry the election in Yolo county in opposition to the railroad. The honest voters of the county can afford to give him a bath in the river for nothing.

HEAVY BUSINESS.—On Thursday night some unknown parties removed a number of grindstones from the front of Hyman's store and deposited them on the sidewalk in the upper end of town. If the operation had a tendency to sharpen the wit of the sports, it is fair to presume they will turn from their evil ways.

MACHINES.—A lively trade has been going on this week in reapers, mowers and other machinery adapted to the use of farmers. The late improvements that have been made in these useful implements will prove a great saving of labor, and enable the farmer to harvest his crops speedily, and without waste.

BEAT IT.—We mentioned last week that we had seen some oat stalks seven feet and ten inches long. David Hays has since presented us with one which measures eight feet, one inch in length. It grew on his ranch near town, and is somewhat of a curiosity in its line. Can it be beaten?

DECAPITATED CHANTICLEER.—The Jewish owner of the headless rooster which was circumcised three months ago by a cook in Martinez, has been exhibiting his curiosity to the citizens of Woodland “for a few days only.” The chicken is alive and apparently in good health.

NEW OFFICE.—Fleishman & Kaufman have fitted up a model office in their dry goods establishment on Main street. It is nicely carpeted, furnished with sofas, lounges, handsome desks, and rendered still more attractive by the presence of good looking and accommodating clerks.

HAYING.—The farmers of this county have been busy during the past two weeks in securing the hay crop, which bids fair to yield more bountifully than usual. The quality of the new hay is excellent, and there is no reason why a fair profit will not be realized from its sale.

LETTERS detained in the Woodland Post-office for postage: Caroline Leonard, Sacramento; J. Julles, Onisbo: Samuel Richard, Alta, Placer co.; Miss Clara Helms, Oroville; Lycurgus Means, Windsor.

GRAIN.—The vast fields of wheat and barley in this section present a most encouraging prospect, and promise a rich reward for the labor and expense of planting and protecting the crop.

QUARTERLY MEETING, of the M. E. Church, will commence in this place to-day at 11 o'clock, A. M. The usual services to-morrow. Rev. Dr. Morrow will preach on the occasion.

DISPATCH.—The morning papers of San Francisco have been received in this town regularly this week on the evening of their publication day, by Cutler's stages.

TULES.—The water in the tules has been rising for several days past.

SUIT TO RECOVER DAMAGES.—Zach. Montgomery commenced suit on Tuesday last against the city and county of San Francisco, to recover damages, sustained by the destruction of his paper, the Occidental and Vanguard, by a lawless mob, on the 15th of April, 1865. The same mob was commended for its deeds of infamy by General McDowell, who had the power to disband the ruffians, but lacked the moral courage to do an act of justice toward those, who, differing in opinion with him, were made the subjects of his vindictive, party spirit, and were forced to witness a destruction of their property for the gratification of the malignant promptings of a depraved heart.

MARRIED.

In Woodland, May 10th, by Rev. W. C. Curry, FRANCIS M. CURRY to AMANDA V. GRAHAM.

STOP THAT COUGHING.

Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure, but is really the very best remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of persons in California and Oregon have been already benefited by the surprising curative powers of

and with one accord give it their unqualified approbation. We now address ourselves to all who are unacquainted with this, the greatest Panacea of the age, for the healing of all diseases of the throat and lungs, assuring you that has cured thousands and it will cure you if you try it.

This invaluable medicine is pleasant to the taste, soothing, healing and strengthening in its effects, entirely free from all poisonous and deleterious drugs, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances.

Certificates from many prominent citizens of San Francisco accompany every bottle of Newell's Pulmonary Syrup.

REDINGTON & CO.'S

Extract of Jamaica Ginger.

This valuable preparation containing in a highly concentrated form all the properties of the Jamaica Ginger, has become one of the most popular domestic remedies for all diseases of the stomach and digestive organs.

As a tonic it will be found invaluable to all persons recovering from debility, whether produced by fever or otherwise, for whilst it imparts to the system all the glow and vigor that can be produced by wine or brandy, it is entirely free from the reactionary effects that follow the use of spirits of any kind.

It is also an excellent remedy for females who suffer from difficult menstuation, giving almost immediate relief to the spasm that so frequently accompany that period.

It gives immediate relief to Nausea, caused by riding in a railroad car, or by sea-sickness, or other causes.

It is also valuable as an external application for Gout, Neuralgia, etc.

YOLO COUNTY DEMOCRAT.

It Is Not Your Business Why.

Would you like to know the secrets
Of your neighbor's house and life?
How he lives, or how he doesn't,
And how he treats his wife?
How he spends his time of leisure,
Whether sorrowful or gay;
And where he goes for pleasure,
To the concert or the play?
If you wish it, I will tell you—
Let me whisper to you sly—
If your neighbor is but civil,
It is not your business why.

And, in short, instead of prying
Into other men's affairs,
If you do your own but justice,
You will have no time for their's.
Be attentive to such matters
As concern yourself alone,
And whatever fortune flatters,
Let your business be your own.
And one word by way of finis—
Let me whisper to you sly—
If you wish to be respected,
You must cease to be a pry.

A good story is told of a "son of Erin" in this vicinity, says the Boston Herald, who built a boat during the past Winter in the cellar of his house, and when the craft was nearly finished, was asked how he was to get it out, when he innocently remarked, "Be jabers, I never thought of that!" As a result of not thinking, the house had to be raised and the back wall of the cellar removed before the boat could be consigned to the element for which it was intended. The man is well known to the boating fraternity, and is celebrated for his models.

A witness in a late divorce suit kept saying that the wife had a very retaliating disposition—that she retaliated for every little thing.

"Did you ever see her husband kiss her?" asked the wife's counsel.

"Yes, sir, often."

"Well, what did she do on such occasions?"

"She always retaliated."

Editor Tilton, of the Independent, was in Washington the other day, and exploited the following simple remark to a rather dull member of the House who elevating his glasses to the gallery, said: "What would you do, Mr. Tilton, if you could not distinguish your friends in the gallery?" "Why, sir," said Tilton, "I would try to distinguish myself on the floor."

Two school teachers in Indiana fell out and had a fight. A great crowd of course was the necessary consequence. A nervous individual came up in breathless excitement and inquired of a wag the cause. "Why," said he, "they fell out about spelling the word 'bird.' One said said it was 'byrd,' and the other contended it was 'burd.'"

A gentleman who had by a fall broken one of his legs, was mentioning the circumstances and describing the pain he felt. A surgeon, who was present, asked him if the injury he had sustained was near the vertebræ. "No, sir," he replied, "it was near the Court House."

Daniel Webster, on being asked the secret of his success in oratory, said he made it a rule never to speak a word unless it was one his mother had taught him. He had always found that the simplest words were the best to convey thoughts or ideas.

All that a man has to do in a place where he is a stranger, is to bridle his tongue and his temper, cultivate good feelings and kind affections, and meet every advance of his neighbor with courtesy, cordiality and cheerfulness.

To an indigent person who was perpetually boasting of his ancestry, an industrious, successful tradesman, of humble origin, observed: "You, my friend, are proud of your descent; I am proud of my ascent."

A friend, having met Sheridan, asked him how he fared. "Oh," answered Sheridan, "I have turned over a new leaf, and now go like clock-work." "Ay," replied the friend, "tick, tick, tick."

A new musical instrument, manufactured of wood and straw, has lately been invented called the Trondoenmiphilopenatrosiamomentum. We hope it will be patented for its name's sake.

A stump speaker in a late meeting declared that he knew no East, no West, no North, no South. "Then," said a bystander, "you ought to go to school and learn your geography."

A writer thinks that much might be gained if speakers in prayer and conference meetings would observe the miller's creed—"always shut the gate when the grist is out."

An appointed wedding at Providence, was abruptly disappointed by the stipulation from the bride that the groom should abstain from tobacco, which he could not do—not quite.

When you pass a door after 9 o'clock at night and see a young man and young woman, and hear a smack, you may rest assured that the young man don't live there.

When a single gentleman cannot pass a clothes line without counting all the long stockings, it is a sign he ought to get married, and the sooner the better.

Open evil at all events does this good—it keeps good on the alert. When there is no likelihood of an enemy's approaching, the garrison slumber on their post.

The most influential man, in a free country at least, is the man who has the ability as well as the courage to speak what he thinks when occasion may require it.

In general, that man is a coward who shapes his course of action by his fears; and he alone is a man of real courage who dares to do right.

Speaking of an election which was only for assessors, a country paper says that they elected the first two syllables.

Diggory says he always respects old age except when some one cheats him with a pair of tough chickens.

To judge of a man's virtue by one great action is like measuring his hight while he leaps in the air.

A man in Cincinnati has sued the Commercial there for calling him a gas-pipe.

"Prove all Things; Hold Fast to that Which is Good!"

This Company does not desire to underrate the merits of any other Company. Good news! good news the cable brings,
O'er all the wires it flies,
Wheeler & Wilson's sewing machine
Brings back the golden prize.

Our "Uncle Sam" first struck the note,
"John Bull" then caught the sound;
Now comes from France the echo back,
Wheeler & Wilson's crowned.

So long its stood the test—
The thing is fairly noised about
And they will buy the best.
